APRIL 2019

HOUSTON CONGREGATION FOR REFORM JUDAISM

Living What We Learn

I recently read an essay written by my son, Simon, who is currently 15 years old. The paper was on the pursuit of happiness, and I was pleasantly surprised that one of his primary arguments was crafted around something he had learned in Sunday school. The teaching had come from his 7th grade Sunday school teacher, Dolph Simon, who said, "In order to make a change for the better, changing your attitude in order to change your behavior will not work. You have to change your behavior to change your attitude."

As I read this essay, my heart swelled with pride. I was proud of Simon who found a way to apply what he was learning in Sunday school to his everyday life, and I was proud of Simon's Sunday school teacher, Dolph, who consistently inspires our students to apply what they learn to how they live.

Reading this small part of Simon's essay reminded me that Sunday school should not exist in isolation. The hope is that our children will apply the values they learn in class to making this world a better place. This hope is embedded in our parenting strategies as well, as our responsibility to transmit our faith to the next generation can, at times, be very challenging.

As Jewish parents, we try our best to provide our children with ways to weave their Jewish values into the fabric of life in a secular world. We want our children to be proud and loyal to their heritage, but when the demands and rhythms of Jewish life compete with those of secular life, major challenges arise.

One of the many ways to approach these growing challenges is to model, through our own behaviors, the values we hope our children will embrace. We often tell our children, "Do what I do and not what I say," and the same should be true as we seek to transmit the values and customs of our faith. In Sunday school and at home, we can talk a good talk about our Judaism, but if our children do not see us applying our Judaism to everyday life, our words simply become nods to the past. However, if we are truly committed to transferring the lessons of our heritage from generation to generation, then each of us needs to find ways to inspire our children (and others) to live what they learn.

In just a few weeks, Jews around the world will gather around their Seder tables in celebration of Passover. Through the rituals and the rites of the Seder meal, we all become students of our faith as values concerning human freedoms and issues around social justice are woven into the fabric of the Passover feast. As we re-enact the story of our ancestral Exodus from Egypt from year to year, we

The Blessings of a Perfect Brew

At every event and celebration we have at HCRJ, coffee is served. It is the single most popular beverage we have, and because of the incredible generosity of Avi Katz, one of Houston's premier coffee roasters, every cup of coffee we serve is delicious. Avi provides HCRJ with premium coffee free of charge as a gift from his heart. It is a gift that blesses us every time we gather. Here is a little information about the coffee we so enjoy!

Katz Coffee is globally conscious company. Katz is part of a "fair trade" movement, which purchases premium goods directly from farmers at a pre-determined fair price. So Katz Coffee is not only delicious, it's a mitzvah to drink it! Katz Coffee also seeks to give back to the community in every way it can, weaving a taste of philanthropy into every cup. HCRJ has been the recipient of Avi Katz's generosity! Thank you Avi and to the entire Katz Coffee organization for the blessings of a perfect brew.

Book Discussion

America's Unholy Ghosts: The Racist Roots of Our Faith and Politics By Joel Goza

Sunday, May 5 at 2:30pm

Join us for our next book discussion in May at HCRJ! Writer, preacher and activist, the Reverend Joel Goza, will be with us to discuss his recently-released book, America's Unholy Ghosts: The Racist Roots of Our Faith and Politics.

This book examines the DNA of the ideologies that shape our nation, ideologies that are as American as apple pie but that too often justify and perpetuate racist ideas and racial inequalities. MLK challenged us to investigate the "ideational roots of race hate" and Ghosts does just that. This book explores a philosophical "trinity"—Thomas Hobbes, John Locke, and Adam Smith—whose works collectively helped to institutionalize, imagine, and ingrain racist ideologies into the hearts and minds of the American people.

Join us for an inspiring afternoon with Rev. Goza as we explore ways to nurture our hopes and desires for a faith and politics marked by mercy, justice, and equity. In addition to being an inspiring speaker and brilliant thinker, Rev. Goza is a very dear friend of Rabbi Gross.

Copies of the book are $25 and will be available for purchase from the temple office starting on Wednesday, April 3.

Please join us for a progressive dinner on May 4. Travel to one home for appetizers and then to the next for dinner, meeting two different groups of HCRJ congregants. Our evening will conclude with dessert at the temple. No cost to attend. Adults only. Attire is casual chic.

Sign up to participate at:
www.hcrj.org/events/progressivedinner

The success of this event is dependent on finding families to host dinner or appetizers throughout the city. For more information and to sign up as a host, visit:

Hadas is the new Israeli Shlichah (emissary) for the Jewish Federation of Greater Houston. Hadas was born in Haifa, Israel, and grew up in a small town in Yzrael Valley. She served the IDF as an educational officer in the Lebanon border, teaching the soldiers about the importance and meaning of IDF's mission in the northern border, along with Israel's history. After finishing her BA in education and Israel state studies, and working for non-profits in Israel, Hadas decided to move to Houston in the hope that she will deepen the connections between Israel and The Houston Jewish Community. Film Screening: Bal Ej: The Hidden Jews of Ethiopia

Sunday, April 14 at 2:00PM

Join us for our April film screening at HCRJ! Following a hundred-year-old account of the prominent Jewish Polish scholar Jacque Faitlovich, the film-maker travels to discover and explore a sect of secret Jews in Ethiopia. Named Bal Ej, craftsmen, for their artisan skills, they have been persecuted by their Orthodox Christian neighbors who slandered them as evil-eyed and hyena-people and have been deprived of the basic rights such as ownership of land, the reason for adopting crafts such as pottery, weaving and iron smithery. Fearing persecutions, they appear Christians outwardly, and practice Judaism in strict secrecy. The synagogues are hidden deep in the mountains and had never before been visited by strangers. Some of their ancient traditions trace back to biblical times and have been completely forgotten by the rest of the world. Bal Ej: The Hidden Jews of Ethiopia lifts the curtains of hundreds of years and reveals the history, customs and culture of this remarkable community to the world.

Following the screening, the film's director, Irene Orleansky, will join us live from Israel via Skype. Born in Ukraine in a family of holocaust survivors from Poland and grown up in Russia, Irene is an Israeli musician, producer, ethnographer and film maker. Irene dedicated the last few years to exploring culture, music and traditions of remote Jewish communities in Asia and Africa.
